This is how my face glows.

I imagine my face glows
Like the sun, so shiny and bright,
Lending the moon its luminous light.

Like the North star,

Showing travellers where they are.

Like a lightning bolt so high
As rain comes pouring from the sky.

Like the fireflies in the night breeze,
Glowing among the leaves and trees.

Like a clusterwink snail down so deep in the sea,
Flashing its light to warn where danger may be.

Like the glow worms' bright spark

In a cave so big and dark.

Like the lamp on the anglerfish's head,
Which seems to light up the deep ocean instead.

I imagine that my face glows
With each kind word and act you show.
