The Big Juicy Mango
Katelyn Mostert
Wiehan de Jager

letsreadasia.org
Tiny shoot begins to show, A tiny plant begins to grow.
Reaching higher towards the sun, Reaching higher until it’s done.
Now it’s a big tree, leafy and green, Spreading it’s branches so it can be seen.
The branches are strong now, sturdy and steady, The tree needs some fruit now, the branches are ready.
The mangoes are picked by my fumbling hands, And put into big baskets to eat or make jams.
The mangoes are picked by my fumbling hands, And put into big baskets to eat or make jams.
This juicy, red mango looks delicious and fresh. Inside of the skin is bright yellow flesh.
Just one bite to taste it, sweet, juicy, cool. That one little taste is making me drool!
My mango is finished, I ate it so fast, I must get another and it won’t be my last!
Let's Read! is an initiative of The Asia Foundation’s Books for Asia program that fosters young readers in Asia. booksforasia.org

To read more books like this and get further information about this book, visit letsreadasia.org

Original Story

This work is a modified version of the original story. © The Asia Foundation, 2018. Some rights reserved. Released under CC BY 3.0.

For full terms of use and attribution, http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/3.0/

Contributing translators: Ritica Lacoul