

Tell Me, What is a Drone?

Author: Shabnam Minwalla

Illustrator: Ruchi Bakshi

Level 2

Have you ever met a drone?

Sometimes it has many wings.
A drone is not a dragonfly.

It flies from one roof to another.
A drone is not a bird.

It has a pouch to carry things in.
A drone is not a kangaroo.

It can detect Seema's house by the sea and Iqbal's house in the city.
A drone is not a spy.

It delivers parcels in 30 minutes.
A drone is not a postman.

Then what is a drone?

A drone is a clever machine.

It flies. It finds addresses.
It takes photographs from up above.

It carries parcels from one place to another.

An illustration of a man in a red and white striped shirt looking up at a drone flying in the sky. The drone is a grey, four-rotor aircraft with a camera. In the background, there are stylized mountains and a village with houses. A colorful bird is perched on the man's shoulder, and a dog is sitting next to him. A small drone is on the ground in the foreground, and another one is falling from the sky in the distance.

Right now, drones are busy learning their jobs.

Sometimes they make mistakes.
They crash into buildings.
They fall from the sky.

But there are rules that stop them from flying everywhere.

One day, drones will criss-cross the skies.

They will rush and deliver medicines to villages in the hills.

They will count tigers in forests and help protect them.

They will photograph hidden corners of our planet.

One day, drones will carry biryani
from a restaurant to Seema's house.

Drones will carry books from the library to Iqbal's house.

Drones will fly with birds outside your window.

Maybe someday soon,
you will meet a drone.
