Once, there lived a box of paint tubes in an artist’s house.
The yellow tube said to her box mates, “I don’t want to paint with you all. I don’t want to become thin and ugly.”
That same day, the artist decided to paint the most beautiful painting ever for all the children in the world.
The artist painted the trees with brown.
But something was missing. What was it?

The artist painted the leaves with green.
But something was missing. What was it?
The artist painted the sky with blue.

But something was missing. What was it?
She painted the blooming flowers with red and pink.

Still, something was missing.
She painted the scarlet dragonflies, the lime green parrots, the snow white rabbit and the grey elephant.

But something was STILL missing.
What do you think was missing in the painting?
The artist opened the window and looked outside.

Now she knew what was missing. It was the sun!
“Yellow? Yellow! Yellowwww!”
She needed yellow to paint the sun.
Do you know where yellow was hiding?
Yellow was nowhere to be seen!

But what about the most beautiful painting for all the children in the world?

What could be done?
Yellow thought and thought.

Then she stuck her head out of her hiding place, whispering, “Here I am. You can paint the sun now. But... only take a little of me.”
There! The artist could now paint the most beautiful painting ever for all the children in the world.

Do you like it?
